Kaneka Releases “Susumu Chikara™ Kinniku-Care™ Shukan Support”
Containing Casuarinin Derived from Lemon Myrtle

Kaneka Corporation (Headquarters: Minato-ku, Tokyo; President: Kazuhiko Fujii) released a new dietary supplement containing casuarinin derived from lemon myrtle*1, “Susumu Chikara™ Kinniku-Care™ Shukan Support*2”, on Wednesday, January 15 through its affiliate company, Kaneka Your Health Care Co., Ltd. (Headquarters: Minato-ku, Tokyo; President: Ikuko Miyake).

Casuarinin is one of the polyphenols contained in lemon myrtle leaves. Kaneka researched active components with muscle enhancement effects in 200 plants for over 10 years and finally found lemon myrtle. It is useful for your Kinniku-Care™ Shukan, maintenance of your muscle with daily exercises.

It is well known that it is important to maintain muscle mass not only through protein intake but also through exercise. However, many people nowadays don't have enough opportunities to exercise in daily life. “Susumu Chikara™ Kinniku-Care™ Shukan Support” could support those who feel a decline in physical function due to aging to leading more active lives by providing casuarinin derived from lemon myrtle, an exercise-supporting ingredient.

Based on our mission of “Kaneka thinks Wellness First,” Kaneka is working to promote comprehensive health, including nutrition and exercise. We will further expand our unique products focused on delicious flavor and health and contribute to people's health and rich dietary lives.

*1. Lemon myrtle is one of the herbs that is naturally found in the subtropical rainforests of Australia. It has long been popular among locals because it is rich in antibacterial and other health-supporting ingredients.

*2. Kinniku-Care™ Shukan refers to the habit of maintaining muscles through moderate exercise.
